Dallas EDC Announces the Appointment of Two New Board Members

New directors add expertise in enterprise technology, AI risk, and intellectual property

Dallas, TX, September 29, 2026 — Dallas Economic Development Corporation (Dallas EDC), a nonprofit organization dedicated to driving business investment, job creation, and inclusive economic growth, is pleased to announce the appointments of Brian Bernknopf and Wei Wei Jeang to its Board of Directors following approval by the Dallas City Council. Brian Bernknopf is an operating executive and advisor with more than 30 years of experience in consulting and enterprise technology. Through his firm, Vanderbilt Consulting Group, he provides fractional executive leadership and AI risk management services. He recently built QA Consultants' U.S. business from start-up through acquisition and has previously managed large P&Ls for several consultancies. Bernknopf is a founding board member of Per Scholas Dallas and holds a computer science degree from The University of Texas at Austin.

Wei Wei Jeang is co-founder and co-manager of Fulton Jeang PLLC, a Dallas-based, WBENC-certified business law firm. A computer engineer by training, she has more than 30 years of experience helping clients secure, license, and enforce patents and trademarks. She holds degrees from the University of Illinois Urbana-Champaign and SMU Dedman School of Law. Jeang previously served on the boards of the Texas Women's Foundation, North Texas Public Broadcasting, and the Dallas Museum of Art.

“Technology now shapes nearly every business decision in Dallas, and our board includes leaders who understand that firsthand,” said Linda McMahon, CEO of Dallas EDC. “Brian has built and scaled companies and advises leadership teams on AI risk. Wei Wei helps innovators protect and license what they create. Their perspectives will strengthen how we attract, grow, and retain businesses across Dallas.”

Dallas EDC directors are nominated by the Board in consultation with the Nominating Committee and approved by the Dallas City Council.
